What Makes BigFuture Day Different from Other College Fairs?

BigFuture Days will create an experience for students that isn't overwhelming and allow them to connect with college admissions representatives and current college students.

- We will showcase a smaller, but representative grouping of universities from each geographic area for students to kick off their college exploration.
- Students will have the opportunity to hear from current college students.
- College planning sessions will encourage students to focus on the most important steps.
- By offering this key information multiple times in February and March, as well as offering recordings, students can go back to find the information that is most important to them.
- Sessions allow students to engage in a mode that works best for them:
 - Listening and learning, asking questions live or via chat.
 - Receiving information in easily digestible formats including 15-minute sessions, self-led exploration, as well as 45-minute moderated panels.
- Students will have the opportunity to take action on important college planning steps during sessions, by engaging in activities like building a college list or searching for scholarships.
